LOCAL NEWS.

THE LATE DAVID FUNSTEN.—The mortal remains of this most excellent man have been consigned to the tomb, but his memory will long live in the hearts of all who knew him. Seldom has the public here exhibited deeper feelings of sorrow than when the announcement of his death was made. A life, though comparatively short, so marked as his was, by the traits of gentleness, truthfulness, honor, integrity, virtue, and true piety, won for him the love and esteem of the whole community.

He was born in Clarke county, Va., where, upon his entrance into manhood, he commenced successfully the practice of the legal profession. His worth and merit secured him the approbation of his neighbors, and he was elected a Delegate from that county to the General Assembly. A few years afterwards he removed to Alexandria, and has resided here ever since, with the exception of the four years of the late war. What his brethren of the bar thought of him, they have expressed, not in words of mere form, in their resolutions which we have already published, and the tribute they paid is responded to universally by his fellow citizens.

He was warm and decided in all his political opinions, and never hesitated to express them with freedom and independence. But he was at the same time so courteous and urbane, that no personal feeling of hostility was ever engendered in the breasts of those who were opposed to him. They respected him none the less for differing from them.

Upon the breaking out of the war, he espoused that which he honestly believed to be the right cause, and joined the Southern army. He was soon appointed a Lieut. Col. of the 11th Virginia Regiment, and in active service in war, was distinguished for his gallantry as he was for his firmness in the peaceful pursuits of life. He was severely wounded at the battle of the Seven Pines, and never fully recovered from the effects of that wound. Whilst in the army, he was elected to the late Confederate Congress, as the Representative from the Seventh District, and served in that capacity with credit and honor to himself until the close of the war.

When the contest ended, he, with shattered fortune and health, looked around for a place, from which again to start in the career of civil life. Inducements were offered to him, from other cities, but his heart yearned towards old Alexandria, the home of his adoption; and he did not hesitate. He came back to us, quietly, contentedly, modestly, and commenced anew his business, accepting with fortitude and resignation what had befallen him, and hoping, for better days in the future. But disease had fastened upon his system. His health had suffered by what he had gone through, and it soon became apparent that his earthly course was shortly to close. Severe sickness prostrated him, and on the 6th inst., he died, calmly and peacefully, at his residence near this place, surrounded by his family and relations, as calmly and as peacefully as an infant falls to sleep.

It was as a husband, a father, a friend that the writer of this brief and imperfect notice, knew him best and loved him most. It was at the family hearth, with the "old familiar faces," around him, that he was most attractive to him who pens these lines. His eloquence as a public speaker, his zeal and learning as a lawyer, his public spirit as a citizen, were all fully acknowledged and appreciated—but they were the merits and qualifications of a public man. Home, was the scene of his greatest triumphs—those of conjugal affection, of paternal love and of a friendship without alloy. No wonder that in his family he was enshrined in the hearts of all—for there shone forth those traits of character which most please, subdue and endear. Who can tell the loss the loved ones at home must experience, deprived of his counsel, care, and affection! May God support and console the widow and the children!

We must not omit to record that David Funsten was, and had been for years, a sincere and humble Christian. There was no ostentation in his faith or his works. If ever the spirit of true religion dwelt in the heart, and regulated the actions of a believer, it did in his. It is this, at last, which consoles in affliction, and which makes us know, that, however, we may sorrow, his has been the glory and the triumph. A glory not ending here on this earth; a triumph yet to be consummated in a brighter and a better world. From his death bed he had bright glimpses of that new home to which he was hastening, and while he exhorted others to follow him there, when their time should come, a light as from heaven itself seemed to irradiate his countenance, and to give assurance to his words.

The remains of David Funsten, Lieutenant Colonel of the eleventh Virginia Infantry, and representative in the Confederate Congress from this district, were escorted from St. Paul's Church—where solemn and imposing ceremonies were conducted on Saturday evening last by the Rev. G. H. Norton—to their final resting place by a numerous cortege of sympathizing and mournful friends.

During the last week 1,368 tons of coal were shipped from the Consolidation Coal Company's wharves, in Georgetown, to various Northern ports. Many of the companies have disposed of their entire stock, and will, therefore, be unable to supply the demand until consignments are received from Cumberland.

The horse stolen from the stable of Sloan & Brauer on Friday night last, and advertised in the Gazette, was "forsook" at the Stone bridge on Saturday night by the thief who had it in charge, and yesterday was again in the possession of its owners.

A few days ago a large quantity of cord wood, at Humley, near town, the farm now occupied and cultivated by Dr. King, was burned, by the carelessness of those engaged in burning brush near to the wood pile.

Large quantities of the finest rock fish and white perch, are now caught at the Fishing Landings on the Potomac. Some of the largest rock fish, we ever saw, are now brought to market every day.

We regret to announce the death, in New Orleans, on the night of the 5th inst., of apoplexy, of Warren Yeaton, esq., formerly of this city.

COUNTY COURT.—The April term of the County Court of this County, was brought to a close on Saturday, but owing to the amount of business transacted, the minutes were not made up in time for us to obtain the full proceedings for our issue of to-day.

The case of Brent vs. H. & Co., an action in case, for use and occupation, was decided in favor of the plaintiff, who was awarded $330.50 and costs.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. McCoy, indicted for petit larceny, a nolle prosequi was entered.

The will of R. E. Violett was admitted to probate, and Emma D. Violett qualified as Executrix.

The will of Margaret M. Dyer was partly proved.

W. F. Carne qualified as guardian of Mary Ann Ryan.

Motions for new trials in the cases of the Commonwealth vs. Isaac Rowland and Ann Milton, were overruled, and each fined $60 and costs; exceptions to the ruling of the Court taken.

POLICE REPORT.—MAYOR'S OFFICE.—John and James Grimes, for disorderly conduct at the house of Mary Goddard, on South Fairfax street, was arrested by the night watch, and this morning fined $6.24 each by George Bryan, esq., Mayor pro tem.

An old white woman from Tennessee, on her way to New York, was arrested yesterday afternoon as a vagrant, and discharged this morning after giving a promise that she would quit the city forthwith.

There were no cases worth reporting at the Magistrates' office.

The Steam Fire Engine, Potomac, was, on Saturday, transferred to its new location, the Hydration Engine House, No. 43, North Royal street, the horses being accommodated in the stable immediately to the North. Considerable alterations have been made in the building, the passage and staircase having been removed, and a staircase run up on the outside; a heavy new floor has also been laid, and suitable benches, tool chests, &c., put up, for the engineer's use.

The Port Tobacco Times says:—"We learn with much pleasure that a fine wharf has just been completed at Nanjemoy Stores, in this County. The property known as Nanjemoy Stores belongs, as we are informed, to Mrs. Samuel Magaw, (wife of Captain Magaw, who it will be recollected, a long time during the war, commanded the Potomac Flotilla,) who has just succeeded, at a cost of upwards of $1,200, in having this wharf built."

"JERUSALEM."—Dr. J. Sampson's Lecture this evening will be the last. From the subject, we presume it will be the most interesting of the course. We advise all of our friends to go to the Methodist Protestant Church to-night and enjoy the rich treat in store for the audience.

SURGEON.—The first surgeon of the season, caught at one of the Fishing shores, and brought to this place, we saw yesterday at the fish house of Mr. Jno. Horsman, at the Fish Wharf. It measured over 6½ feet. It is considered early for the appearance of this fish.

Under our obituary head will be found the death of Dr. J. Porter, a much respected citizen and physician.

The renewal of some of our old business houses on King street has already been noticed in these columns, and we are happy to see, day by day, other gentlemen return to their connection with our mercantile interests. None among those who have resumed, command public confidence in a higher degree, and none are more worthy of it, than the senior partner of the firm of Bryan & Breerwood, George Bryan, esq. A young man still—albeit a few thin lines mark that the hand of time is touching him—Mr. Bryan stands in all the essentials of a true merchant, among the best of our people. Of blameless integrity, clear judgment and elegant manners, he is a man who would make his mark in larger communities than this, and hence it is not strange he ranks among those to whom in hours of trouble the community look for guidance and advice, and upon whom they are glad to bestow their trusts. Mr. Breerwood, the junior member of the firm, is a native of the sister state of Maryland, a rising merchant of capacity and experience. The new firm have already received evidences of public favor which show that the house is to be one of the institutions of the city, to grow with Alexandria's growth. Mercantile judgment and interests characterize the operations of the house; taste displays itself in the assortment; in its well filled shelves and store rooms; and, what during the war, with rare exceptions had become a scarce commodity in our stores—courtesy is the ruling spirit of the place. We need not add our good wishes to the evidences of substantial favor, which our community is daily bestowing upon the firm.

DIED.—In this city, this morning, at 10½ o'clock, Dr. JEREMIAH PORTER, in the 62nd year of his age. His funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, from his late residence on Prince, between Fairfax and Water streets. The friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend.

On Thursday morning, at the residence of his mother, corner of King and West streets, LEWIS SOMMERFIELD WELLS, in the 16th year of his age.

In New Orleans, on the 5th inst., WARREN YEATON, formerly of this city.

GUANO.—No. 1 Peruvian Guano in store and for sale by [mh 1—m] T. A. BREWIS & CO.

An Alexandria correspondent of the New Nation, a Radical paper just started in Richmond, is the author of the following, to which a more may be added as to facts:

In making a point out of the same of the Councilmen, I think I took it wrong. The City Council, by a Charter then granted by the Virginia Legislature, was directed to lay out a Virginia Avenue and Common Council. At the time of the laying out of this road, I was found that the Board of Aldermen, by an additional expense without any practical benefit, and the Charter was changed, abolishing the Board, and leaving all the things worked more smoothly than before the change. The Dele-gate from this city in the last Legislature, for causes unknown to many, had a new Charter passed restoring the Board of Aldermen, by adding the corporation with the expense of salaries for clerk and messenger, besides light, fuel and stationery, and this at a time when the city is unable to pay any of its interest. The first Ward returned Messrs. Barton and Gwin as Aldermen, and Barker, Markell, Brent, and Lambert to Council. Messrs. Barton and Gwin remained here during the rebellion, and I believe, were entirely quiet. Messrs. Barker, Markell and Lambert also remained. Mr. Brent was on General Bragg's staff with rank of Colonel. Mr. Brent was particularly venomous, and always looked like he could bite a ten-penny nail in two when he was a Union man. It may be, however, that his vinegar countenance is owing to dyspepsia. Mr. Markell quit business because his conscience was too tender to take an oath to support the Government of the United States.

The second Ward returned Messrs. Brewis and Smith to the Board of Aldermen. Mr. Brewis left here when the rebels vacated Alexandria in 1861, and had some connection with the rebel Commissary Department. He is an Englishman by birth; to Council Whittington, Esq., Herbert and Brown. Mr. Whittington commanded an artillery company for the defense of Richmond, (I find Mr. Ashley had some connection with the rebel army in its early history. Mr. Herbert left here in command of a company and rose to the rank of Colonel in the above army. Mr. Brown has been one of the most violent secessionists among all the "bomb-proofs."

The third Ward returned Messrs. Bryan and Usher. Mr. Bryan left Alexandria with his family, and went to the Eastern shore of Maryland in the early part of the struggle, as he could not do business under a loyal Government. He has not been back sufficiently long to render him eligible, but no test as to qualification was required in the third Ward. Of course he went through. He has been elected President of the Board, and no doubt, will make a good presiding officer. Mr. Usher is an excellent gentleman, but he belongs to that class called Copperheads. Booths, Johnson, Withner and Clifford were elected to Council.

Booths and Clifford, "I said by some who profess to know, rode both sides of the sapling, and I presume they have got their reward. It is reported that Johnson (Dr. J. B.) said he would go in jail and his ashes should blow through a key-hole before he would take the oath of allegiance, but when put there for his treasonable conduct he repented of his rash declarations and came out in all his corporal proportions by taking the oath afterwards. Mr. Withner is a Pennsylvania man, but his Southern feelings were so strong that he sent all his goods South in May, 1861, and soon after left his household goods. He has not been back over nine months.

What matters it, if many of these gentlemen did take an oath to support the Jeff. Davis Government, and swear they never would live under the Stars and Stripes? They are now reconstructed, and I suppose the abrogation of all the Union men, and the election of rebels, to fill all the municipal offices, presents Alexandria in the eyes of the nation as a reconstructed city.

The members elected in the fourth Ward correspond politically with all the rest, and the same may be said of all the rest who have been elected to various offices under the new Charter."
